Our First Meet

A CONVERSATION GUIDE

A little planning before meeting in person.

Talk through these prompts together. Notes are optional.

Meeting does not create an obligation to play, become intimate or meet again.

Keep personal safety arrangements on the separate private page.

01 What are we hoping for?

- Is this coffee and conversation, getting acquainted, or something else?
- What would help this feel relaxed and comfortable for each of us?
- Are we both clear about what this meeting includes?

You do not need to decide now whether anything will happen afterward.

02 Comfort, boundaries & privacy

- What greeting feels welcome? Should we ask before any touch?
- Are there topics or personal details we would rather keep private?
- What are our boundaries around photos or sharing details of the meeting?

Ask rather than assume; online chemistry does not promise in-person comfort.

03 Where, when & afterward

- Which public meeting place and time work for both of us?
- How long would we like to stay, and can we each travel independently?
- Would we welcome a follow-up message? There is no need to decide yet.

Keep a change of venue or extension of the meeting a fresh, optional choice.

My private arrangements

For your own use. You do not need to share this page with the person you meet.

Write only what you are comfortable keeping on paper. Store it privately.

01 Getting there & getting home

My transport, a backup option and what I need for the journey:

02 My check-in arrangements

If I choose: who will know my plans, when I will check in, and what we agree:

03 Room to leave or change my plans

My preferred finish time and a simple way to say I am heading home:

04 After the meeting

How did I feel? Would I like contact again, more time to think, or no follow-up?
